Green bamboo and pink plum blossom under a pine tree, gone is the winter and comes the spring; “Falun Dafa is good,” a voice travels beyond mountains and lakes.

Compassionate Dharma light illuminates everywhere, bathing in Buddha’s grace, sentient beings smile.

Refreshing breeze and auspicious clouds in a fine day, carry a banner reading “Truthfulness-Compassion-Forbearance is good”; Ending the CCP and revising tradition, we are happily welcoming a new season.

Paper Quilling: One's Wish

June 9, 2022 | By Qing Lian, a Falun Dafa practitioner in China

(Minghui.org) Two families in China shared the same wish. They wanted to make a precious gift for Master and wish Master a Happy Birthday. They were worried and did not know what to do since they neither knew how to write or draw, and had no special talents. Perhaps Master saw their sincere hearts and enlightened them to create something by using a special art form, paper quilling.

Paper quilling is the art of cutting paper into long thin strips, rolling and pinching the pieces into different shapes, and then gluing the shapes together to form decorative art. To create their artwork, practitioners used strips of paper that ran from 2 millimeters to 10 millimeters wide and 39 millimeters to 54 millimeters long.

With hearts of sincerity, gratitude and their steadfast belief in Master and Dafa, elderly practitioners, from the ages of 70 to 80 years old, began learning this new art form. They quilled a peacock and peony in three months and called it "One's Wish". They want to wish Master a Happy Birthday! In addition, they also celebrated the 23rd anniversary of World Falun Dafa Day and the 30th anniversary since the public introduction of Falun Dafa!

Practitioners felt they were helped by Master while they created the artwork. They always came up with a good solution or idea whenever a problem arose. They also received great help from their families.

They wish to express their gratitude to Master for protecting and guiding them.

Dimensions of the artwork:

The artwork itself: 29.7 cm x 42 cm Frame: 43cm x 55 cm

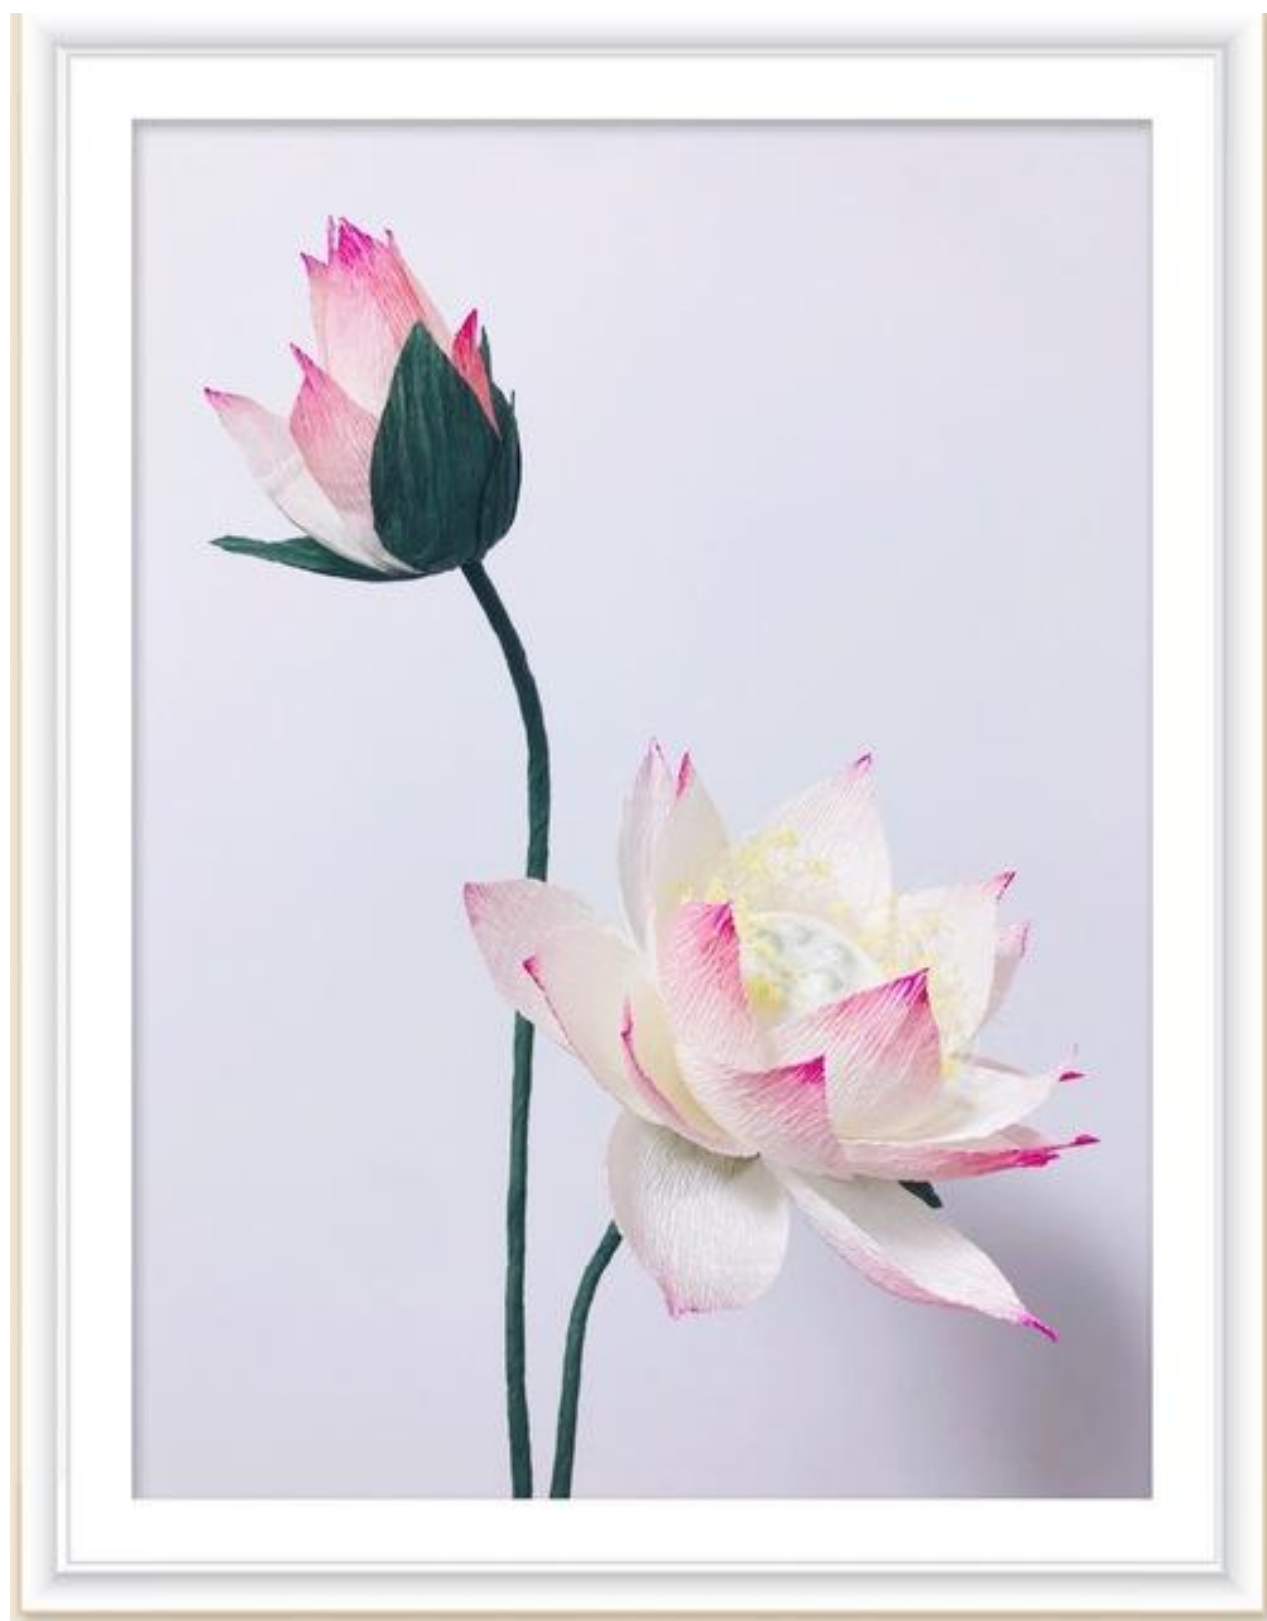

Materials used:

Paper strips in 30 different colors
Felt and velvet materials
A3 sized glossy paper
A3 sized poster paper
Beads of different colors

(Minghui.org) The artist wrote, “On the occasion of the 30th anniversary of Falun Dafa’s introduction to the world, I created these paper lotus flowers to express my infinite gratitude to great, compassionate Master Li and my reverence for Dafa’s guiding principles, Truthfulness-Compassion-Forbearance. I extend my respect for Falun Dafa practitioners who, like the lotus flower that emerges pure and clean from the mud, have emerged from the secular world untainted.

The paper lotus flowers were made by a Falun Dafa practitioner who hand-dyed the materials, cut and arranged them, and then photographed them.

Chinese Painting: Looking Up for Light

June 8, 2021 | By Cai Mo, a Falun Dafa practitioner in China

(Minghui.org)

Descending to this human world from high above,I was tainted with fame, interest, sentiment, and resentment;Happiness and sorrow came and went,leaving me with frustration, sadness, and despair.

Coming to know Dafa helped me find the way back,with determination strengthened by the harsh persecution*;Master gave me great painting skill,allowing me to spread the beauty of Dafa to more people.

Going forward I will remain diligent in cultivation practice,as my wings take me back to the heavenly home;Grateful for the immense compassion from Master,I will fulfill my vow and look up following the light.

Note: Falun Dafa, also known as Falun Gong, is a meditation system based on the principles of Truthfulness-Compassion-Forbearance. It has been suppressed by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) since July 1999.

This artwork is painted on 80 cm by 100 cm linen canvas. It tells the story of Falun Dafa practitioners in China going to the countryside to raise awareness about the persecution of the practice. They managed to hang up banners on tall birch trees. The colorful banners look very beautiful in this serene village near the mountain and river.

The second picture is a close-up of the part showing the practitioners and the banners.

Silk figurines are a traditional Chinese folk art with a history of one thousand years. Making these figurines involves carving, painting, sewing, dyeing, weaving, and filigreeing. The heads of the figurines can be made of gesso, clay, or wood, while the skin and clothes are different weaves of silk fabric.

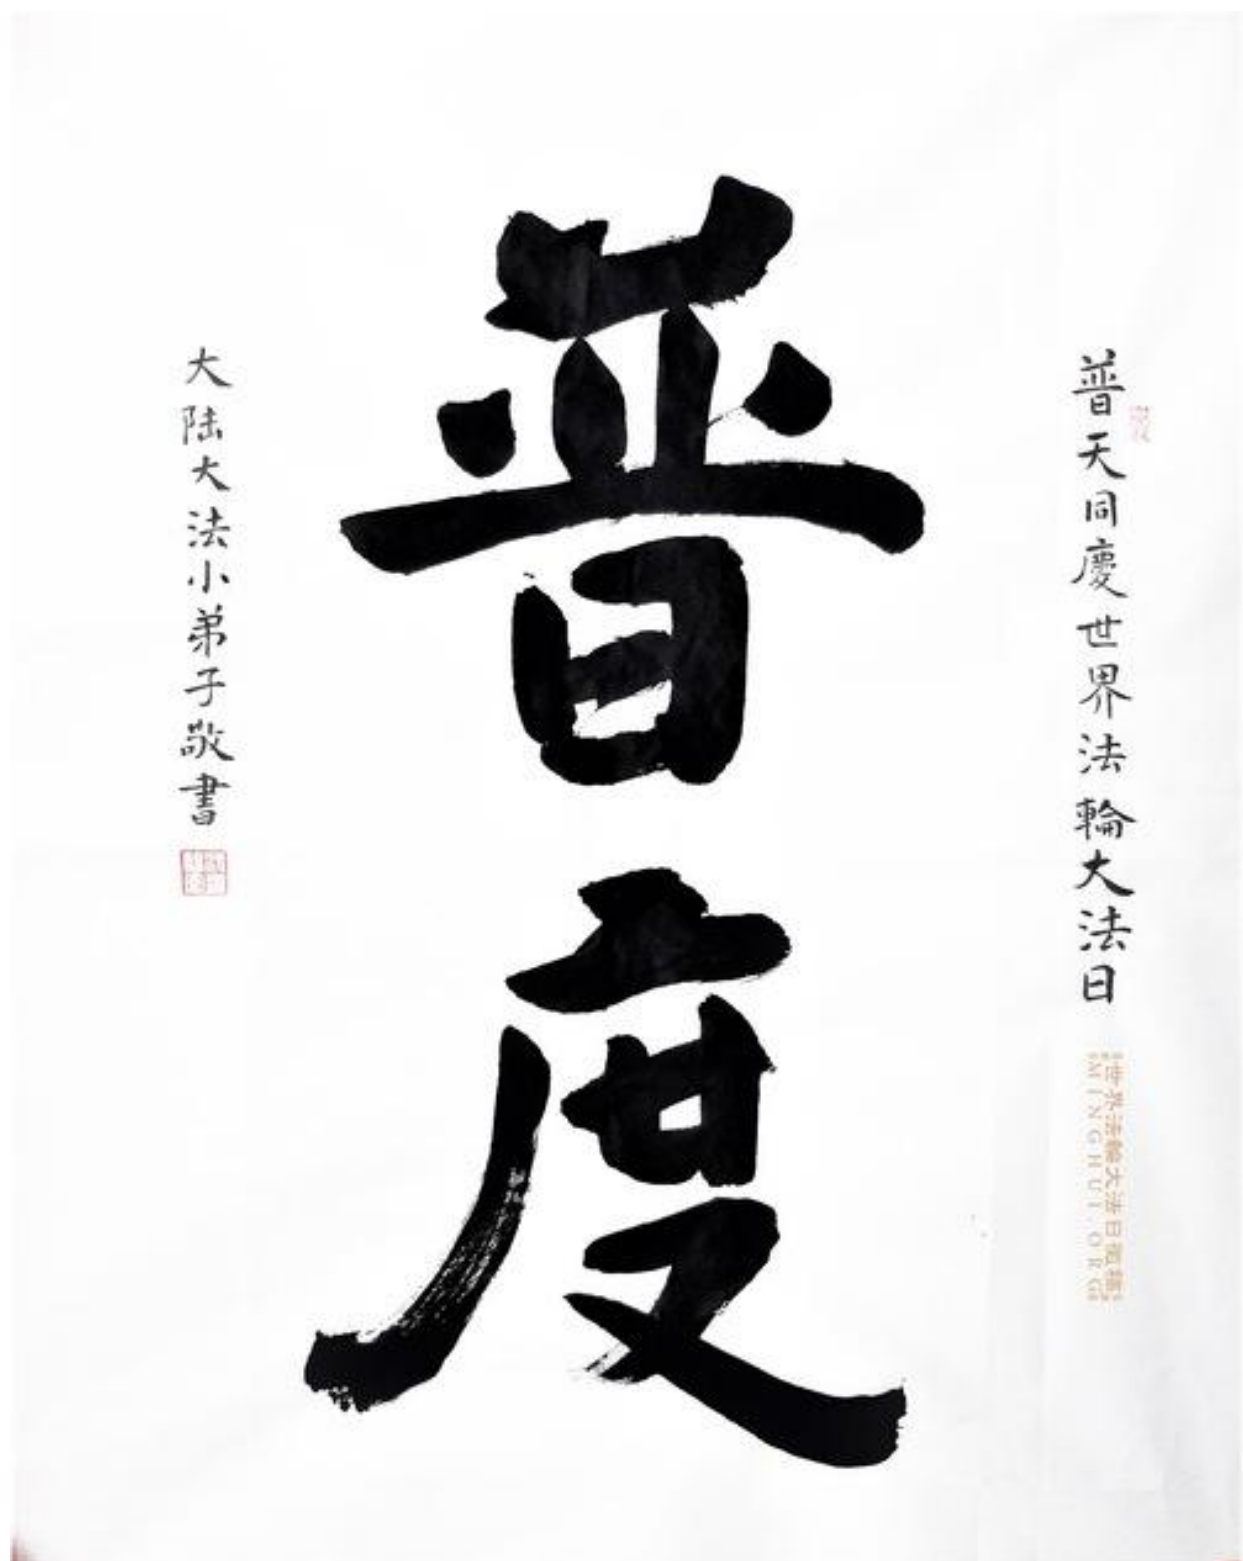

This silk figurine, named “Heavenly Maiden Scattering Flowers,” is made by a Falun Dafa practitioner in Spain. The ancient Chinese believed that when a divine being comes to the world to save people, heavenly maidens will cast flowers around in celebration of the grand event.

This art piece is dedicated to the special occasion of May 13, 2021, which marked the 22nd World Falun Dafa Day and the 70th birthday of Master Li, the founder of Falun Dafa.

Chinese Painting: Perseverance and Gratitude

May 20, 2021 | By Zheng Qingjin from Hong Kong

(Minghui.org)

Falun Dafa, a meditation system based on the principles of Truthfulness-Compassion-Forbearance, has been suppressed by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) since 1999. While practitioners in mainland China have been subjected to arrests, torture, or imprisonment for upholding their faith and exposing the CCP's brutality, their counterparts in Hong Kong have also worked hard to raise awareness of the suppression and call to stop the atrocity.

With Lion Rock – a mountain in Hong Kong that represents its spirit – in the background, this painting highlights practitioners' courage and perseverance during the harsh persecution. Over the years, one practitioner in Hong Kong has helped over 570,000 people, including tourists, to quit the CCP and its junior organizations for a better future.

In the painting, banners next to the group meditation read “Falun Dafa” and “Truthfulness-Compassion-Forbearance.”

Sails of the boats bear the phrases of “Falun Dafa is good” and “Celebrating May 13 World Falun Dafa Day.”

They show practitioners' deep gratitude to Mr. Li Hongzhi, founder of Falun Dafa, for his compassionate salvation.
