

China in Focus (March 31): Professor's Speech Reveals Beijing's Shortcut to Success

A Chinese expert says Beijing copied its way to the world's front row. And now, the Chinese regime uses that leverage to get away with aggression toward the West.

Hong Kong's special status is still long gone, in keeping with former President Donald Trump's policy. The city is now considered no different than mainland China, a shift that holds severe consequences for the financial hub.

Hong Kong's democracy has all but faded. This, after Beijing cuts down on opposition from the city's electoral system.

A historic moment for Taiwan. For the first time in 42 years, a U.S. ambassador visits the island.

And China says it would welcome a visit from the United Nations to its Xinjiang region. But adds that it will not allow investigations into reported abuse of the Uyghur ethnic minority.

Subscribe to our YouTube channel for more first-hand news from China.

For more news and videos, please visit our website and Twitter.